1 Introduction

This report summarizes the Ohio Public Engagement in Neighborhoods Mapping Project—OPEN Maps—a participatory mapping project to collect and aggregate community of interest (COI) data throughout the state of Ohio.

The project is an active collaboration between academic and community partners. The MGGG Redistricting Lab at Tisch College of Tufts University led an academic faculty working group from institutions across the country, in partnership with the Ohio State University’s Kirwan Institute for the Study of Race and Ethnicity, the Ohio Organizing Collaborative, and the Ohio Citizens Redistricting Commission.

Prioritizing Communities of Interest is generally considered to be an essential ingredient of fair redistricting but, in practice, it is prohibitively difficult to implement without local community knowledge. A key contribution of this work is the collection of spatialized testimony from the public, which featured not only textual descriptions of the communities, but mapping showing their geography.

To summarize the public testimony, We chose a data resolution that produced an initial round of 25 clusters near the end of August, numbered A1-A25; a second round in early September, numbered B1-B25; and a final round in early October, numbered C1-C22.

The choice of coarse or fine data resolution can be varied, but it is important to consider usability by the line-drawers at the scales relevant to redistricting (which suggests that the clusters should not be too large), balanced with ensuring sufficient richness of the supporting data (which means that the clusters should not be too small). A full description of methodology is available on request to contact@mggg.org.

We begin with summary descriptions of each COI cluster, accompanied by heatmaps showing where the corresponding areas of interest were located. The raw testimony that supports each cluster is presented in Section 3. There are hyperlinks from the summary to tables, tables back to summary, and from individual table entries to the detail pages in the public portal.

1.1 How to use this report

As the line drawers in Ohio proceed to publish proposed lines for its new districts, members of the public can consult this report to find synthesized and organized public testimony.

Steps

- Consult the summary view (Figure 1) to see which clusters are most relevant to the part of the state under consideration.
- Begin with the brief description and heatmaps of the clusters in Section 2. This should help form a sense of the geographic scale of the cluster and will provide a summary of important themes.
- Next to the name of the cluster is a link that will jump you straight to the table of raw data in Section 3. There, you can read the submissions for yourself! Some submissions are very long, so we have truncated them after a character limit equivalent to several tweets. In the first column of these tables, you can find a link that will take you straight to the detail page for the original submission in the public portal. Note that the top row of the table contains a link that jumps you back to the summary page for the cluster.

By flipping between the summary descriptions/heatmaps, the tables of supporting data, and the submission pages on the public portal, we hope that users will be able to form a high-level view of public testimony, supported by specific detail.

Figure 1. This summary view shows the centers of mass for the 22 clusters produced from submissions to the OPEN-Maps public feedback portal. Some of these submissions were presented as communities of interest, and others were presented as single districts, usually with a community-centered description.

2 COI Clusters

Cluster C1 – Greater Cincinnati. (52 submissions) Diverse urban area. Bond Hill identified as predominantly Black community with concerns about access to grocery stores, gentrification, flooding, and health disparities. Northside described as gentrifying neighborhood with young families, amenities, and important community events such as parades. Other named neighborhoods include College Hill, Walnut Hills, Mt. Auburn, East Price Hill, and OTR (Over-The-Rhine). Prince Hill, Delhi, Mason, West Chester, Clifton identified as areas with significant Muslim community. Wyoming identified as a wealthy area with good schools.

Cluster C2 — Inner-ring Cincinnati suburbs. (27 submissions) Diverse area facing gentrification, leading to skyrocketing cost of living. Affluent area in Hyde Park and Oakley. I-71 divides many neighborhoods. Health concerns regarding addiction.

Cluster C3 – North Cincinnati suburbs. (22 submissions) Cluster includes upper-middle-class suburban communities, families, and professionals, with an interest in maintaining the quality of their school districts. Mix of small businesses and chain stores. Recreational opportunities, including Loveland Bike Trial. Two submissions describe diverse community of Black, Hispanic, and Middle Eastern families. Some cite targeting of immigrant communities by ICE.

Cluster C4 – Springfield/Celina/Northwest. (7 submissions) Submissions cite downtown revitalization in Springfield. Concerns about declining population, lack of jobs, and inequitable distribution of resources across the city. Shared festivals and recreation including a water park identified as important community spaces in the greater region. Older, White, Catholic community in Celina identified.

Cluster C5 — South Dayton. (65 submissions) Includes White suburban areas around South Dayton, as well as diverse Muslim and Indian population in Centerville. Submitters noted importance of three area high schools: Springboro, Lebanon, and Centerville. Concerns about community spaces and parks. Includes neighboring town of Bellbrook in Greene County, a rural area with individuals who commute to Dayton, Beavercreek, and Cincinnati for work and events.

Cluster C6 — West Dayton. (28 submissions) This cluster centers on West Dayton, an important and historic Black neighborhood. Lack of services, including grocery and hospital access. Some abandoned homes and general infrastructure needs. Concerns about litter, job opportunities; desire for representatives to support women- and Black-owned local business, including local childcare network. Some recreational facilities (e.g., golf course) are not accessible to community members. Churches are important community gathering spaces, particularly Omega Baptist Church and New Hope Lutheran.

Cluster C7 – West of Dayton. (13 submissions) Western suburb of Trotwood is a focus; Darke County and Jefferson Township (Montgomery County) cited, along with predominantly Black Dayton neighborhoods of Westwood and Residence Park. Trotwood described as diverse, friendly, and close-knit. Major infrastructure needs in the area, including tornado damage recovery, healthcare and hospitals, roads, and primary education.

Cluster C8 — Mansfield area/Morrow County. (30 submissions) Commenters mention some wealthy areas, including a gated community, and residential areas with senior and assisted living complexes. Rural and bedroom communities. Predominantly White, but there is a Hispanic community present in Mansfield. Concerns about access to groceries in several submissions.

Cluster C9 — Athens. (30 submissions) Athens proper is described as a college town, with recent Black Lives Matter and renters' rights protests. Town is surrounded by relatively poorer, rural community. Nearby recreational activities are noted.

Cluster C10 — Reynoldsburg/Gahanna. (18 submissions) Gahanna cited as an increasingly diverse Columbus suburb with growing African-American and Asian populations; Reynoldsburg also diversifying, with many commuters. Creekside is an important community gathering place. Concerns over policing and public services, including addiction resources, and environmental concerns in Gahanna. Diverse area with recreational opportunities. Gentrification and the displacement of Black communities noted.

Cluster C11 – Westerville/Granville. (58 submissions) Submitters describe predominantly White, middle- to upper-class communities. Rural identity in Jersey Township, Hopewell, and outskirts of Granville. Growing corporate presence, including Facebook headquarters. Westerville described as having many churches, strong support for police, and as needing attention to development priorities and to increased inclusivity.

Cluster C12 — Northeast Columbus and suburbs. (35 submissions) Communities often identified by their school districts. Shared parks and churches. Many refugee and immigrant families, including Somali and Nepalese. Concerns about infrastructure, including sidewalks inaccessible to wheelchairs. Shared public services.

Cluster C13 — Columbus metropolitan area. (158 submissions) Large student population with residential turnover in student areas. Recreational activities and increasing young workforce. Gentrification and access to green space are key concerns. Grandview Heights is predominantly White, affluent area with concerns with school districts. Mifflinville, North Linden, and Northeast Columbus comprised of diverse immigrant community, with many Muslim and Somali-Americans. (Note: this cluster includes many duplicate submissions.)

Cluster C14 — Hilliard/Dublin. (121 submissions) Increasing population of young professionals alongside families and older individuals. Some wealthy neighborhoods are noted. Large concentrations of middle-class Muslim families. Recent improvements to infrastructure. Several important religious institutions. (Note: this cluster includes many duplicate submissions.)

Cluster C15 — Greater Toledo metro. (30 submissions) Distinct inner city and suburban areas. Submitters value public art, museums, recreational areas. Concerns about affordable housing, public transportation, and infrastructure for daily commuters. Surrounding suburbs share concerns about water quality. Shared public services.

Cluster C16 — Northeast Ohio/Cleveland suburbs. (56 submissions) Mix of urban neighborhoods and bedroom communities (Rocky River, Bay Village) near Lake Erie, an important natural resource. Diverse, trending younger. Glenville described as historically Jewish, then African-American, now gentrifying. Glenville Riots noted as shared history. Lakewood is described as densely populated, multigenerational, and multiracial, with a strong community identity.

Cluster C17 — East Cleveland and inner-ring suburbs. (67 submissions) This cluster stretches along Lake Erie inland to Shaker Heights, an affluent suburb with strong schools. Includes some diverse neighborhoods with fewer resources. Concerns about poverty, housing, education, access to grocery stores, and over-policing. Cultural attractions (including Cleveland Museum of Art and Institute of Music) can feel inaccessible to local residents. Suburban area concerned about noise pollution from major highway. Richmond Heights lacks grocery stores.

Cluster C18 — Akron/Kent. (65 submissions) Diverse rust belt community in Akron, formerly anchored by rubber and automobile manufacture. Some impoverished areas and wider lack of affordable housing. Employment centers include cities of Akron, Cleveland, and Youngstown. Investing in infrastructure is a community interest; policing concerns. Institutions of higher education, including Hiram College and Kent State, with some town-gown tensions. Cuyahoga Valley National Park, Cuyahoga River noted. West Portage County described as wealthier. Area has major shared history, from John Brown and Sojourner Truth to Kent State Massacre and beyond.

Cluster C19 — Parma/North Royalton. (28 submissions) Individual areas painted by submitters in this cluster describe the split into lower-income (Old Park) and middle to upper class (Strongsville, Parma Circle) suburban neighborhoods. Described as predominantly White and rural.

Cluster C20 — Medina and surrounding counties. (45 submissions) Largely rural/suburban but with some commercial areas and housing developments. Bedroom communities near Akron. Predominantly White. Medina Square is an important community space for recreational activities. Good school districts, College of Wooster. Limited public transportation. Medina County residents travel to Fairlawn and Wooster for shopping and dining. Some submissions detail 200 years of local history.

Cluster C21 – Warren/Youngstown. (17 submissions) Some areas in Warren identified as low-income with concerns about education, gun violence, and homelessness; some described as more expensive areas with predominantly White residents and access to good schools and grocery stores. Concerns in Youngstown include food deserts, education, poverty, crime, and high incarceration rates. Economic opportunities are lacking, as manufacturing and factories have closed. West side of Youngstown and city outskirts are more rural with large retirement communities.

Cluster C22 – Stark County. (14 submissions) Strong education and transportation system with major interstate highway. Though economic opportunities are cited, there are also concerns about declining population. Conservative, middle-class area with large student population identified in Alliance.
