1 Introduction

This is the final summary of Community of Interest (COI) clusters assembled from public commentary submitted to the Missouri community mapping portal from its launch in early June 2021 through mid-August 2021.

We chose a data resolution that produced an initial round of 35 clusters near the end of August, numbered A1-A35 and generated a final, third round of clusters at the end of September, numbered C1-C35.

The choice of coarse or fine data resolution can be varied, but it is important to consider the balance between usability by the line-drawers at the scales relevant to redistricting balanced, which suggests that the cluster should not be too large, with ensuring sufficient richness of the supporting data, which suggests that the clusters should not be too small. A full description of methodology is available on request to contact@mrggg.org.

We begin with summary descriptions of each COI cluster, accompanied by heatmaps showing where the corresponding areas of interest were located. The raw testimony that supports each cluster is presented in Section 3, accompanied by hyperlinks from summary to tables, tables back to summary, and from individual table entries to the detail pages in the public portal.

1.1 How to use this report

As the line drawers in Missouri publish their newly proposed districts, members of the public can consult this report to find synthesized and organized public testimony.

Steps

- Consult the summary view (Figure 1) to see which clusters are most relevant to the part of the state under consideration.
- Begin with the brief description and heatmaps of the clusters in Section 2. This should help form a sense of the geographic scale of the cluster and will provide a summary of important themes. For large clusters, we have used a text classification technique to produce subclusters with different themes highlighted by submitters.
- Next to the name of the cluster is a link that will jump you straight to the table of raw data in Section 3. There, you can read the submissions for yourself! Some submissions are very long, so we have truncated them after a character limit equivalent to several tweets. In the first column of these tables, you can find a link that will take you straight to the detail page for the original submission in the public portal. Note that the top row of the table contains a link that jumps you back to the summary page for the cluster.

By flipping between the overview, the summary descriptions/heatmaps, the tables of supporting data, and the submission pages on the public portal, we hope that users will be able to form a high-level view of public testimony, supported by specific detail.

2 COI Clusters

Cluster C1 — Greater St. Louis. (11 submissions) Strong St. Louis identity in the city and surrounding area. Many residents reported the need for improved public transportation and highway infrastructure. Broader area shares cultural institutions and events. City residents cite concerns with parks, schools, public utilities, safety, and healthcare. One submitter emphasized that service workers need access to affordable housing and childcare.

Cluster C2 — North St. Louis. (7 submissions) Submissions cover a stretch of city neighborhoods from West End to Hyde Park. Historic homes with significant renter population. Shared parks and walking paths. Large concentration of Black residents. Area near Saint Louis University described as core middle class and professional neighborhood. The "Delmar Divide" cited as a historically significant line of segregation.

Cluster C3 – South St. Louis. (25 submissions) Predominantly working class area with pockets of wealthier families and Saint Louis University students. Tower Grove Park is an important outdoor community space. Area faces gentrification and affordability issues, particularly among renters. Transportation and safety for pedestrians and cyclists is important. There are notable immigrant and LGBTQ communities, which have some existing infrastructure and support.

Cluster C4 – Greater U City. (10 submissions) Townships surrounding University of Missouri-St. Louis and Washington University. Increasing housing values. Student population. Diverse area with concentrations of Black, Jewish, and Asian American residents. Former Chinatown was demolished to develop Busch Stadium. Concerns about policing, schools, and infrastructure.

Cluster C5 — St. Louis County Suburbs. (32 submissions) Middle- to upper middle class suburbs with working class communities on the periphery. Concerns about under funding school districts, particularly Parkway and Ladue School Districts. Significant renter population near Maryland Heights. Concentration of Asian American residents with religious sites and community centers. Elderly Jewish community supported by Jewish Community Center.

Cluster C6 — St. Charles and North St. Louis County. (12 submissions) Areas in St. Charles County delineated by school districts and limited local transit options. Historic homes are noted. Area economy said to rely on tourism. Communities in North St. Louis County share services and businesses.

Cluster C7 — Greater St. Charles. (57 submissions) Cluster is dominated by maps collected through League of Women Voters. Maps show important employers, including manufacturing plants and Concentrated Animal Feeding Operations (CAFOs). Cluster has a mix of rural and agricultural land, small cities, and unincorporated suburbs. Concerns about flooding and traffic infrastructure. Submitters mapped school district boundaries and identified areas that have and do not have access to medical services, parks, childcare, and polling places. Seasonal homes noted in Innsbrook.

Cluster C8 – South St. Louis County. (20 submissions) Many submitters mapped local school districts, including Affton, Mehlville, and Lindbergh School Districts. Significant population of students qualify for free or reduced lunch. Mehlville was described as having an immigrant population. Telegraph corridor cited as locus of business and transportation. Residents report needing help with childcare, affordable groceries, and healthcare services. Mix of homeowners and renters.

Cluster C9 – Outer St. Louis County. (38 submissions) Support for public schools and funding for education. Home affordability was tied to the school districts in the area. Rising cost of living and home prices makes it difficult for families to afford childcare, healthcare services, and groceries. Suburban identity is noted for some communities in the cluster. Historically Black neighborhood identified in Webster with a history of discrimination noted in Kirkwood.

Cluster C10 — Flood-prone Suburbs in South St. Louis County. (18 submissions) Suburban communities along the Mississippi River with significant tourist industry. Families rely on free and reduced lunch for students at several elementary schools. Noted concerns associated with frequent flooding due to proximity to Mississippi and Meramec Rivers. Healthcare concerns related to Herculaneum Superfund Site.

Cluster C11 — Jefferson-Franklin Counties' Rural Communities. (24 submissions) Rural communities primarily consisting of homeowners. Home to several tourist attractions and recreational opportunities: network of hiking and biking trails, Robinson State Park, conservation areas, fishing, golf. Low-income residents with general affordability concerns including food, housing, and healthcare. Focus on school districts, with noted reliance on free and reduced lunch at many elementary schools. Concerns about flooding and protection of water resources. Coal ash and other sources of pollution in the Missouri River are cited. Shared concern about how the districts have previously divided the region.

Cluster C12 – UMKC area. (24 submissions) Cluster contains a mix of housing types: rentals, apartments, condos, single-family homes, historic houses. University of Missouri – Kansas City supports surrounding commercial/cultural areas (plazas, museum, small businesses). Young professionals, families, retirees, and elderly population. Collective concerns about public safety, new development, and affordable housing.

Cluster C13 — Greater Kansas City. (5 submissions) Metro area that shares transportation authority. Low-income and diverse communities described in neighborhoods in south Kansas City. Concerns about cost of living and lack of investment in infrastructure and schools. Lake Tapawingo area noted for families and LGBTQ residents.

Cluster C14 — Northland KC. (27 submissions) Predominantly White, conservative, suburban areas with retirees and growing number of young families and diversity in the region. Noted increasing development to accommodate growing population. Working class to middle class neighborhoods are mapped, along with some areas of wealth. Residents cite a distinct identity from the rest of Kansas City and a need to expand public transportation. Ford identified as large employer.

Cluster C15 — Downtown Kansas City - gentrification. (41 submissions) Mix of historic, traditionally working class neighborhoods alongside increasingly affluent, highly developed areas. Concerns about gentrification, affordable housing, limited public transportation, and struggling Kansas City Public Schools. One resident noted loss of Section 8 housing due to new development. Area also includes young families and professionals. Diverse neighborhoods include a significant LGBTQ population.

Cluster C16 — Historic Northeast. (26 submissions) Encompasses Independence, Liberty, and Raytown areas. Blue collar to middle class area with significant immigrant communities. Diverse residential areas in this cluster have a mix of renters and homeowners. Need for improved public transit and increased school funding are cited.

Cluster C17 — Lee's Summit, Blue Springs, and Lake Lotawana. (24 submissions) Kansas City suburbs with many families alongside elderly population. Some cite traffic issues around Highway 470 as part of general infrastructure and transportation needs. Many employed at local hospital. Local public schools and education are commonly cited concerns. Funding for parks and recreational activities is important.

Cluster C18 — Rural Counties along Kansas Border. (9 submissions) Rural and agricultural communities that value local school districts. Unreliable internet service cited. Several describe commuting to nearby areas for goods and services and note the importance of transportation infrastructure to support commuting residents and local economies. Education and retail are among largest local employment sectors. Reliance on tourism industry.

Cluster C19 — St. Joseph. (10 submissions) Small city with walkable neighborhoods and noted cultural, shopping and leisure opportunities. Many submissions reference new ideological tensions between conservative and liberal residents. Connection to highways and other main streets enable ability to enjoy recreational activities and feel connected to the community. Low-income areas are identified in Midtown with neighborhood deterioration marked by abandoned properties and crime. Midtown historically impacted by redlining. Nearby Maryville offers shopping and entertainment alternatives.

Cluster C20 — Mid-Missouri. (17 submissions) Jefferson City serves as economic hub for surrounding rural communities. Many employed by state, county, and local hospitals. Commuters travel between Jefferson City, Columbia, and growing city of Ashland. Shared concerns about transportation infrastructure due to commuters and new Jefferson City school district that extends into surrounding area. Jefferson City experiencing economic development, while surrounding farming communities cite concerns about rising utility prices, access to hospitals, food desert, and health effects of CAFOs.

Cluster C21 – Columbia and surrounding rural/farming areas. (58 submissions) Rural and farming concerns, especially centered on Fayette. Family-oriented communities. Submissions cite shared services and recreation. Outlying areas rely on Columbia for services and hospital access. Some concerns about infrastructure, particularly I-70.

This cluster semantically split into C21-1 and C22-2. The submissions in C21-1 focused on keeping a local school district together and concerns surrounding infrastructure, while C22-2 submissions centered on themes of family-oriented communities and local economy. There is significant geographic overlap between these splits.

C21-1 (31 submissions)

C21-2 (27 submissions)

Cluster C22 — Mexico and surrounding areas. (18 submissions) Many submissions collected by the League of Women Voters. Rural farming communities vulnerable to shifting commodity prices. Residents cite environmental and health concerns associated with the CAFOs and a nearby coal-fired power plant. Area home to two biofuel plants and a soybean meal plant. Poor roads, internet access, and flooding concerns cited. Pride in local public schools.

Cluster C23 – Livingston County and Kirksville. (11 submissions) Kirksville residents cite concerns including renters rights and safety codes. Local hospital serves surrounding area. Home to A.T. Still and Truman State University, which bring in thousands of students to the area. Livingston County is predominantly a farming community. Residents find medical services, good schools, and public services in Chillicothe. Poosey Conservation Area offers recreational opportunities. Amish and Mennonite community in Jamesport.

Cluster C24 – Barry and McDonald Counties. (4 submissions) Agricultural communities. Concerns about access to broadband and health insurance. Webb City offers cultural amenities like Arts district and theater. Concerns about sidewalks, road maintenance, recycling, and access to rental housing.

Cluster C25 — South of Springfield to Arkansas Border. (44 submissions) Significant number of submissions describing rural, conservative communities and school districts threatened by poverty, unemployment, and lack of access to public services. Populations vulnerable to poverty, homelessness, and drug addiction. One submitter identified people living in tents behind Branson Walmart. Some environmental concerns. Important employers include local shops and wedding venues, Branson Airport, and Amazon Distribution Center. Tourism includes popular boating areas, Wilson's Creek National Battlefield, and resorts. Nixa identified for strong school districts.

Cluster C26 – Bolivar area. (22 submissions) A mix of rural communities and Springfield suburbs. Ash Grove described as poor, rural town with lack of funding for education. Area north of Springfield, Walnut Grove, and Fair Grove identified as farming communities. Willard described as popular, successful suburb. Salvation Army identified as resource for homeless population and single-parent households. Southwest Baptist University off-campus housing for students and faculty identified in this area.

Cluster C27 — Downtown Springfield and Missouri State University area. (52 submissions) Center of recreation and economic activity. Young families and college students. Includes Missouri State University, Drury University, and Ozark Technical Community College, as well as two large hospital systems. Affordable housing concerns, especially for students and low-income, seniors, and disabled residents.

This cluster semantically split into C27-1 and C27-2. The submissions in C27-1 focused on affordable housing concerns, concerns for the lower income population, and recreational activities in the area. Submissions in C27-2 focused on the student and worker population of the surrounding universities and the overall cost of living.

Cluster C28 – Small-town communities in Bootheel area. (29 submissions) Many submissions reference Missouri Jobs with Justice and represent the towns of Hayti, New Madrid, and Sikeston. Large concentration of African American residents. Reported lack of public resources, grocery stores, businesses, and day cares. Need for investment in public transportation and road maintenance. Depressed local economy with many commuters. Tourist Center and convention center in town of Miner.

Cluster C29 – Cape Girardeau and Jackson. (22 submissions) Cape Girardeau economy sustains surrounding areas, including smaller town of Jackson. Healthcare and economic activity link the surrounding area to the Cape. St. Francis Medical Center cited as important employer and healthcare resource. Northern part of the Cape composed of middle-class homeowners, while southern and eastern areas described as more diverse with rental properties. Home to Southeast Missouri University.

Cluster C30 — Fredericktown, Perryville, and Potosi. (4 submissions) Economic activity and hospitals identified in Fredericktown and Perryville. Concerns about access to broadband. Local presence of the KKK cited in submission about Potosi.

Cluster C31 — Eldon and surrounding areas. (20 submissions) Area dominated by rural farmland with cattle and turkey CAFOs. Many Christian communities identified, including Baptists, Catholics, Evangelicals, and Mennonites. Shopping and groceries available in Eldon and Osage Beach. Jefferson City, Lake of the Ozarks, and Ft. Leonard Wood military base serve as main focal points for employment opportunity. Parts of Eldon in disrepair from tornado.

Cluster C32 – Eastern ring - Jefferson City. (10 submissions) Fulton Prison and state hospital cited as critical employment and healthcare centers. Home to two liberal arts colleges that draw students and renters to the area. Shared concerns about travel time to the hospital and Walmart for household needs. Hermann economy driven by tourism and service industries. Presence of the Callaway Nuclear Power Plant poses security and safety concerns. Significant Catholic community with shared festivals and schools identified.

Cluster C33 — Rolla and surrounding areas. (25 submissions) Rolla serves as regional economic hub for surrounding rural communities. Area home to Missouri University of Science and Technology, Mark Twain National Forest, and Ft. Leonard Wood military base. National Forest and St. James wineries contribute to local tourism industry. Ft. Leonard Wood offers employment and housing. Other cited concerns include access to healthcare and emergency services, unemployment, and utility shutoffs.

Cluster C34 – West Plains, Doniphan, and Piedmont. (14 submissions) Low-income communities with shared concerns about economic opportunity and access to healthcare in light of recent hospital closures. River communities impacted by tourism and environmental regulations. MUNCH food pantry provides resources to individuals and families in Howell County experiencing food insecurity.

Cluster C35 – Lebanon and rural South Central Missouri. (38 submissions) Largely described as low-income, rural farming community with agricultural and tourism-based economy. Shared concerns about access to nearby and affordable healthcare. Good Samaritan Care Clinic cited as community resource for free medical and dental care. Manufacturing hub in Lebanon but local employment opportunities are generally scarce. Infrastructure concerns include insufficient road and sidewalk maintenance and unreliable internet access.

Four Communities in Missouri: I grew up in the City of St. Louis, worked as the editor of a newspaper in northeast Missouri, and went to school in Columbia, where I serve as a member of an advisory board for the city's bus system. I have family who live elsewhere in the state. This map represents my understanding of how the economic and community institutions of the parts of the state with which I am most familiar work.

St. Louis Neighborhood: We love our community because our community is uniquely diverse. We have residents with varying levels of income and who share different racial and ethnic backgrounds. We come together in our beautiful parks, educational and cultural institutions, irrespective of age, ethnicity, who we love or the different array of beautiful homes in which we reside. Prior to the pandemic, we had many opportun...

Greater St. Louis: St. Louis and its surrounding counties share institutions, cultural events, and economic engines. People commute for work, school and recreation within this area, further knitting it together.

Poosey Conservation Area: The Poosey Conservation Area is an area where my family hikes, where I do photography. We also participate in the Poosey Tour regularly. People from all over the state visit Poosey to fish, hike, camp, swim and many other recreational activities. There was recently a grave threat posed to the area from a large hog CAFO that was attempting to build a facility within 2 miles of the conservation area...

Healthcare: I receive my basic healthcare from Hedrick Medical Center in Chillicothe. Hedrick does a great job meeting the needs of the community to the degree that a small community hospital is capable of. There is also a public health center in Chillicothe that provides flu/COVID shots, blood draws, WIC services and other services provided to the public including low income citizens.

Farm Equipment and Repair: I purchase large farm equipment and get repairs at the Gallatin Truck and Tractor. I also purchase farm fuel and supplies. Jamesport is a Amish and Mennonite community where we buy some produce and hire some construction workers. We also dine out and grocery shop on occasion. I buy farm supplies and cattle feed in Trenton. We also dine out and do some grocery shopping in Trenton.
